Key factors impacting Higher education in French Polynesia

Challenges, opportunities and trends

Prof. Jean-Paul Pastorel
Vice-Chairman of the Board
Professor of Public Law
University of French Polynesia

Current and emerging challenges, opportunities, trends in the higher education sector in French Polynesia

- Strengthen university relations in the Polynesian triangle (Hawaii, New Zealand, Samoa)
- Consolidate our strategic partnerships throughout Oceania (Australia, Vanuatu...)
- Maintain and develop our relations in the Asia-Pacific region.

New government policies that impact directly or indirectly the sector

- French strategy: develop links in the Indo-Pacific axis and offer our partners opportunities for relations with the French-speaking world
- New Polynesian government's strategy: promote relations with all countries in the Oceania/Pacific region, and establish relations with regional international organizations or those active in the region (WHO, FAO, etc.).

Key information that may impact current international strategies / advices to assist institutions's future plans within our region

- - Develop exchanges and links with Asia-Pacific universities (mobility, projects, diplomas, etc.)
- - use digital resources to set up training or research projects
